

Every allergen change, every kitchen, with a record.

Notices reach every team member in their own language, on their own phone, with a record of who confirmed.

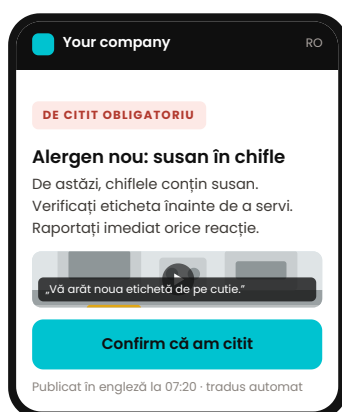

Your kitchens sit on other people's sites. When an allergen changes or a supplier recalls a batch, you need it read in every kitchen that day, by people whose first language may not be English. TeamTalk sends it, translates it, and shows you who confirmed.

WHAT IT DOES

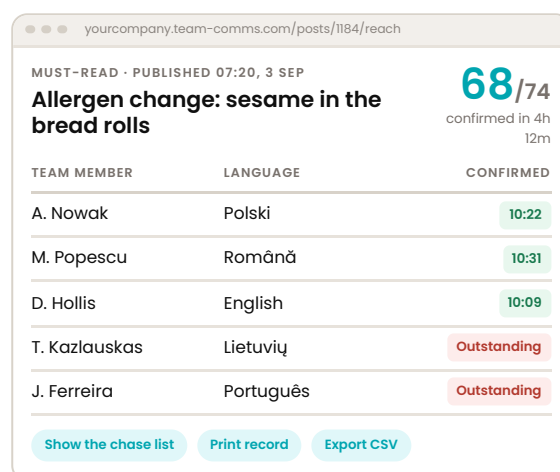

- ✓ Post once and every team member reads it in their own language, captions included.
- ✓ Mark a notice must-read and the confirm tap only appears once it has all been on screen.
- ✓ See who has confirmed and who has not. The chase list hides everyone who has.
- ✓ Print a per-person record or export to CSV, with the language read and the time confirmed.
- ✓ New starters join by scanning a QR code on a join card. Phone number and a text code, no email.

The join card. Scan, enter a phone number, you are in.

The translated notice. The allergen notice, on the phone, in the reader's own language.

Up to 3 sites and 250 enrolled workers, 100% credited against year one. The fee is refunded only if both criterion 1 and criterion 2 are missed: 70% logged in within 14 days, and 85% confirmed within 72 hours. The measurement rules are agreed in writing first.

PROOF AND COMPLIANCE

Regulation 10 of MHSWR 1999 requires information to be comprehensible, which is hard to argue for an English-only notice read by a Romanian kitchen porter. TeamTalk leaves you a dated, per-person record showing the allergen change or recall was read, in the language it was read in. It is evidence towards showing you did enough. It is not a defence on its own and nobody should sell it to you as one.

What it is not. It is not a rota, a training record or a food safety management system, and machine translation is good for notices but not for legal wording without a human check. Data is held in the United Kingdom (AWS London, eu-west-2).

“Which of your kitchens has the most languages in it right now?”

25 minutes on a real phone. I will tell you honestly if it is not useful.
